Lanyard Proofing Guide

Every effort has been taken to make sure your proofs are issued correctly, however it is your responsibility as our client to ensure the proof is correct when it is approved.

When Approving:

- ✓ Check for spelling errors
- ✓ Ensure logo position and orientation is correct
- ✓ Check that logos are legible (size and quality)
- ✓ Colour references are correct
Provide Pantone CP references where possible
- ✓ Check any advice provided by the Artworking team

Get in touch with the artwork team directly by using the amendment section on the approval form if you require any changes or have questions

When reviewing the proof, please keep in mind that the final print will be on a 15, 20, or 25mm lanyard. Due to the size and printing process, intricate lines and images may be subject to bleed from surrounding colours.

If in doubt of the quality, send us a message, and we can provide a complimentary test strip photo before approval and production.

Many brands require specific colours to be printed, or require the same colour when reprinting the same design. To ensure we meet expectations, as the colour on screen may have some variance once printed, we highly recommend providing a Pantone Colour Bridge CP reference. If a reference is not provide, we will not be able to match the colour.

We can only reference Pantone Colour Bridge CP colours due to the printing process, so please review all swatches carefully and ensure you are looking at the CP variant. If you are unable to find a Pantone Colour Bridge CP reference that matches the colour you desire we can accept sending of samples for colour matching. There is a £7.50 charge per colour for Pantone matching on new and repeat work.

You can request a production sample, we do charge £20 + VAT, this price includes express service for production and next day delivery to a UK mainland address.

Please note sending of samples may delay order production.

On your proof will be your provisional despatch date. To achieve this date we need you to approve your proof within the times specified in the ordering guide, otherwise your despatch date may be affected.

When you are satisfied with the proof, we recommend that you get your client to approve the proof online. If you are approving the proof on their behalf and they raise an issue with the production you will still be responsible for paying our invoice and that of any re-print.

The proof approval process is the last check before printing. At proof approval the responsibility for the job passes to you as our customer.

So to avoid unnecessary bills, please ensure this important process is treated with the respect it deserves. Check it once and then again.
